

I won't turn this into a DMCA protest, but forcing HDTV reciever creators to enforce copy protection is a removal of rights. People in the USA have always been able to record things off TV, either because they want to watch it later, or maybe someone else wants or needs to watch it later. Copying TV shows is not a common occurance. When was the last time you bought a copy of a movie that was recorded from TV? I never have.